By Police for Violation of the Bicycle Ordinance.

Yesterday witnessed more arrests for violations of the bicycle ordinance than on any day this year. Four patrolmen were detailed for special duty on this work and fifteen arrests were made before 6 p. m. The department found considerable trouble in finding violators, and the special detail were instructed to wear citizens' clothing. The arrests made were as follows: Henry Elstrod, 124 Fulton street; Frank M. Wright, 310 East New York street; John B. Whitehead, 906 Sheffield avenue; Henry Addison, 1517 Lafayette street; Thomas Green. nue; John Hutchinson, 730 Roanoke street; Melville Phillips, Clarence Wehrle, 350 East Washington street; John Jones, 1212 East Twelfth street, and Robert Russell, 1020 hode Island street. Jones and Russell, who are both colored, were also charged with petit larceny, they having had stolen dicycle license tags in their possession.

quarters of the mail clerks running on the shouting over the Philadelphia nomina-Pennsylvania between Pittsburg and St. Louis may be changed from Indianapolis to Richmond. An effort to this end is now being made, it being claimed that Richmond is the more convenient point for the clerks, who are themselves petitioning for the change. The Commercial Club of that city is interested in the movement. About 200 clerks would be affected by the change. Several months ago Indianapolis people raised an objection to this change being made, and Representative Overstreet suceded in preventing the postal authorities from issuing the order at that time.

THE WALKERS IN PEKING

According to a Telegram Received by Their Son in This City.

Yesterday Probate Commissioner Merle N. A. Walker received a telegram from A B. Leonard, of New York, secretary of the Methodist Foreign Missionary Society, stating that Judge Walker's father, Wilbur F. Walker, was in Peking, and that the situation there was precarious. Judge Walker's father, mother and sister are in China doing missionary work. Mr. and Mrs. Walker visited their son about two months ago. Judge Walker thought they were in Tien-Tsin, and was surprised to learn that his father had gone to Peking. Cincinnati Business Men To-Day.

The Husiness Men's Club, of Cincinnati, will arrive in this city at 11 o'clock this norning for a five hours' visit. The club will be met at the station by committees from the Commercial Club and the Board of Trade. After a trip around the Belt Railroad luncheon will be served at the sates and then chartered cars will carry the visitors to Fairvew Park, thence to the German House, where there will be speeches and refreshments. An effort is being made at Cincinnati to have the entire bership of the club, 750, to come, and, incidental to the visit, there will be a little dvertising for their festival this fall. The club will leave at 4:30 this afternoon.

The Ticket and Platform Both Satisfactory to the People-Political Gossip.

Senator Charles W. Fairbanks arrived i this city late yesterday afternoon, having hastened his departure from Philadelphia in order to attend the funeral of Mrs. Bev eridge. The senator said that he had an engagement to speak in Boston last night, This Week | but canceled it so that he might attend the obsequies of Mrs. Beveridge. While he has not outlined his plans for the coming campaign, the senator expects to be a very busy man. "I have promised to make speeches during the campaign," said the senator, "and when I have no engagements in that line I will try to find something else to do. It has not been decided as yet where I will speak, but I know that I wil make several speeches in Indiana."

The senator is very enthusiastic over the kill. O'Brien is thought to be insane. ticket nominated at Philadelphia and predicts that it will be a winner. In speaking of the convention last night Senator Fairbanks said: "It was a very interesting convention. Although the result of it in the main was foreseen, there was, nevertheless, a great deal of enthusiasm and interest manifested. The nomination of McKinley was, of course, sure to be made, yet there was as much interest in the nomination and as much enthusiasm incident to it as is usually found when presidential nominations are made. On every hand it was apparent that the people had a deep and abiding respect and admiration for our chief executive. Few Presidents have ever had a greater hold upon the confidence and respect of the country. Delegates from every section of the country seemed exceedingly desirous for the renomination and re-election of the President in order that there might be no check whatever to the prosperity prevailing. The general feeling was that with his renomination and re-election our prosperity would continue indefinitely.

GENERAL SATISFACTION. in the result of the convention. Its work was gratifying to every one, apparently. 100,000 The belief was general that the ticket would surely win. President McKinley has been a wise, conservative and untiring officer. Mr. Roosevelt has long been prominently before the country, and is by no capacity and adaptability to the publi service, and he will make a very fitting candidate for the second place on the ticket, and that he will perform the duties of the office, when elected, in a thoroughly acceptable manner, goes without saying. "The convention adopted a strong plat form and one which will thoroughly com mend itself to the people. There are no experimental suggestions in it. It does not promise the impossible. It suggests principls and policies which are thoroughly sound and wholesome. It embodies noth ing which may not be adopted as a part of our governmental policy or written into the permanent laws. With President McKinley as a candidate no formal announcement of principles would be really necessary, for his record will be sufficient in itself to just tify a favorable verdict at the polls. His administration certainly has been conspicuously successful and is worthy of support. The acute situation in China, the condition of affairs in the Philippines, the new governments of Hawaii and Porto Rico, our delicate task in Cuba and our great and varied domestic problems render the election of the ticket nominated at Philadelphia a matter of the greatest m ment, if not of absolute necessity.'

Why He Doesn't Shout Now.

Among those who are feeling particulary good over the ticket nominated at Philadelphia is George Gonzer, the deputy secretary of state. He doesn't think the De The report is again current that the head- ocrats will have a chance. "I am not tions," said he, "for I don't believe in growing hilarious at a funeral. But in Nonber, when the Bryanites have been buried so deep that they can't hear the trumpet of Gabriel on the morning of the resurrection, you can bet your last dollar you will hear me shout loud and long."

Roosevelt May Be Here.

Some time within the next ten days Theodore Roosevelt, Republican nomince for Vice President, will pass through Indiana on his way to Oklahoma to attend the reunion of Rough Riders, July 4. It is thought probable that he may pass through Indianapolis, and in that event an effort will be made to induce him to stop over for a few hours. Colonel Roosevelt is billed for a number of speeches in Indiana, but his dates have not yet been assigned.

Slow in Coming Home.

With the exception of Senator Fairbanks and Hugh Hanna none of the Indiana delegation have yet returned from Philadelhia. A number of them were expected to return at 10:45 last night, but did not arrive. Chairman Hernly and Secretary Bigler are expected to-day. Talk of Cheadle.

The trial occupied the greater portion of the afternoon. Two witnesses for the state testified "There was the most general satisfaction | they had placed money in Toomey's hands to be placed on certain horses, the names of which were posted on a blackboard They did not, however, seem to know whether or not they were "bets." Acting Judge Leyendecker, in giving his decision in the case against Bemis Dudbridge for attempted criminal assault upon a nine-year-old girl, used some very forcible language and intimated that the recent decision of the higher court concerning the jurisdiction of the Police Court in cases of assault and battery had much to do with the small sentence given. He said: "I do things which it appears this man has done And I will say here that if this was my child this man would not be a defendant in this court to-day." Dudbridge was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to jail for thirty days, that being the limit of Police Court jurisdiction.

James Sweeney, charged with entering the house of Herman Kessener, No. 1128 Southeastern avenue, was bound over to the grand jury. Liss Breeding, colored, also went to the grand jury on charges of burglary and petit larceny.

Charles Allhouse, charged with embezzling money from the Crescent Paper Company, was bound over to the grand jury and released upon his own recognizance. The seven cases against Michael Collins for violation of the building ordinances and failure to display red lights on street obstructions at night, were continued until July 7.

SIMPLE AND BEAUTIFUL

Were the Services at Mrs. Beveridge's Funeral.

The funeral services of Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge were held yesterday afternoon at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Caroline Whitsit, 1609 North Meridian street. The services were very impressive and beautiful and were conducted by Rev. William A. Quayle, of the Meridian-street Church, assisted by Rev. H. A. Cleveland, of Selina Kan., a former pastor of Meridian-street Church. The rooms were a mass of beautiful floral offerings sent by the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Beveridge, the most elaborate being a floral easel from the Indiana delegation to the Philadelphia convention. A large number of friends were present and were much affected by the touching remarks of Mr. Cleveland, who was a friend of Mrs. Beveridge for twelve years. He spoke of her as a Sunday school teacher beloved by all her pupils, her affectionate reverence toward her parents and her modest but real delight in her home. Mr. Cleveland recalled her wifely devotion to her husband, to whom she consecrated her whole life and for whom she had great ambition. His closing remark was: "My dear senator, let me with earnest emphasis assure you that this great and saintly soul will always be with you, a blessed and spiritual presence, and often you will hear her speaking to you, sometimes in the voice of the stillness and in the lyrics of the winds and the waters and in the anthems of the thrushes. And when you sit down in solitude to think out great problems and olan great enterprises, arise to speak on great occasions or questions you will hear her tender voice like the notes of silver flutes played by spirit fingers and heard at midnight-you will hear a tender voice saying, 'Now be your best, now do your best.' Dr. Quayle next spoke briefly on Mrs. Beveridge's absolute devotion to her husband and her great cordiality of manner toward all with whom she came in contact. A prayer followed Mr. Quayle's talk, after which Miss Lillie Adam sang "Nearer, my God, to Thee."

All of the near relatives of Mrs. Bev eridge were present, including Miss Mary Langsdale, of this city, a sister of Mrs. her father and brother; two uncles, Col. W. B. H. BUTLER DEAD

HE WAS ONE OF THE PROMINENT CITIZENS OF THE STATE.

Passed Away at the Home of His Son, Noble C. Butler, in This City -A Brief Sketch.

At 7:30 yesterday morning John Hopkins Butler passed peacefully away at the home of his son, Noble C. Butler, 1204 Park aveneu, death resulting from the infirmities of old age. Mr. Butler had been for many years one of Indiana's leading citizens, noted for his integrity and great moral worth. The last eight years of his life were spent in this city.

The ancestors of Mr. Butler emigrated to this country from England with William Penn, and settled near Westchester, Pa. Mr. Butler was born in Washington county, Pennsylvania, Oct. 17, 1812. Many of his relatives still reside near the old homestead in Pennsylvania. Judge Butler, who retired from the bench of the United States Court two years ago, is a relative of Mr. Butler. Two cousins of the late Mr. Butler are prominent in public life, one of them being on the state bench at Westchester and the other, Thomas C. Butler, is now serving his second term as a member of Congress.

Mr. Butler came to Indiana with his parents in 1819, settling on a farm in Jefferson county, where he passed his early days. His education began in the public schools and later he attended Hanover College. One of his brothers, Noble Butler, was a professor of languages in that institution of learning. William Butler, a younger brother, was shot and killed while teaching a private school in Louisville in 1853. Matt Ward, one of his pupils, did the shooting because Mr. Butler had punished his younger brother, also a pupil in the school. After the war broke out Ward en-Tron's saloon, on North Illinois street, were tered the Confederate service and was HE STUDIED LAW.

John Hopkins Butler spent a short time teaching school and then decided to study law with Judge Eggleston, of Madison, Ind. Judge Eggleston was an uncle of Edward Eggleston, author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster." At the time Mr. Butler entered into the study of law his fellow-student was William McKee Dunn, who afterward represented the Madison district in Congress. Mr. Butler entered upon the practice of law at Salem, Ind., in 1839, where he met with reasonable success in his early career. He rapidly acquired a large and profitable practice, and in a remarkably short time was regarded as the leading lawyer of southern Indiana. In politics he was a Whig, and when the Republican party was organized was one of the leaders in his locality. He was a delegate to the Whig state convention in 1840 which nominated Joseph Bigger as a candidate for Governor. He made the trip to Indianapolis to attend the nvention on horseback. The Whigs nomnated him for membership in the constitutional convention, and he was defeated by only nine votes. He remained a loyal Reblican and fought for the interests of the party throughout his life. In 1860 he was selected as a delegate to the national Republican convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln for the presidency. He oted for Lincoln on every ballot.

During the war Washington county possessed a number of men who were in sympathy with the South and who held midnight meetings, but through the tact and firmness of Mr. Butler they were prevented from doing damage.

GRESHAM'S LAW PARTNER. Mr. Butler removed to New Albany in 1866, where, with his son, Noble C. Butler, he became associated with Walter Q. Gresham in the practice of law, the firm name being Butler, Gresham & Butler. In 1869 Mr. Gresham received the appointment of judge of the United States District Court and removed to Indianapolis. A few years later he appointed Mr. Butler's son. Noble C. Butler, clerk of the United States District Court, and he also moved to In-

Governor Baker appointed John Hopkins Butler as judge of the Circuit Court of Floyd county, which position he held for a short time and then resigned. Mr. Butler then gave up the practice of law and served as a member of the City Council in New Albany. He was president of the Merchants' National Bank of New Albany and one of the directors of the Bank of Salem. of Salem, Ind., of which W. C. De Pauw was president. Mr. Butler invested his money judiciously and retired from active ousiness nearly a quarter of a century ago.

MARRIED MISS CHASE. Mr. Butler was married to Miss Mary Chase at Salem June 3, 1843, Mrs. Butler died in 1892, and since that time he has nade his home with his son, Noble C. Butler, in this city. Two children survive him, Noble C. Butler and Charles H. Butler. | National Prohibition Convention at The latter is employed in the Treasury Department at Washington. Mr. Butler was a man of high literary atainments, and was a close student an in life. He was a constant reader of high-class literature until a few weeks prior to his death, when he was confined to his bed. He was able to quote from the Bible and Shakspeare. The arrangements for his funeral were completed last evening, and the services will be conducted from the home of his son. Noble C. Butler, 1204 Park avenue, at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The services will be conducted by Rev. Mackintosh, of the Fourth Presbyterian Church. The pallbearers will be Judge William A. Woods Judge John H. Baker, W. H. H. Miller, John H. Holliday, John R. Wilson and George T. Porter. The interment will be at Crown Hill Cemetery, and the remains will be interred next to those of his wife in the family lot.

Mrs. James B. Gaylor Dead. Mrs. James B. Gaylor, eighty-five years of age, who for many years resided at 179 East New York street, died last evening at the home of James B. Kingsbury, in Irvngton. She was born in New Hampshire, and came to Indianapolis in 1860. Her husband, who died about fifteen years ago was engaged in the ornamental plaster business, and did the work in the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Gaylor was a member of the Fourth Presbyterian Church She leaves one daughter, Miss Helen Gay lor, who lives with Mrs. Kingsbury, The funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

ENGAGED IN ROUGH PLAY

SWELL.

And Tom Cordon Nearly Lost His Life by It.

Rough-and-tumble boys' play nearly caused the death of Tom Cordon, of No. 1128 South West street, late yesterday afternoon. With several other lads he went to the bicycle repair shop of Thomas Mc-Kenzie, at No. 133 West Georgia street. Three or four of the boys got inside the shop and locked Cordon out. He tried to get in but could not. A number of times he retired to the edge of the walk, and each time one of the boys would unlock the door and open it slightly, quickly closing it when Cordon made a rush to get in before it could be locked. The last time this was done the door was opened wider than before and when Cordon made the rush to get in he ran against the glass, breaking it and cutting the arteries in the right wrist. There were two deep cuts, each about three inches long. The blood spurted from the wound and covered his clothes and the floor. A handkerchief was tied around it and he started for the City Dispensary, the blood still flowing in a stream from the cuts. In order to tighten the bandage he picked up a small stick and used it as a lever to twist the bandage tighter. Dr. Wiggins, at the Dispensary, dressed the injury, taking
